California Rural Policy Task Force Community Development Staff List

Executive Summary

The California Rural Policy Task Force, working in cooperation with its member agencies and departments, has developed this directory of the key points of contact for State entities which work directly with rural communities on community development activities.

The purpose of the directory is to identify specific points of contact for use by the public when requesting information on State programs and services. Developing and implementing a more efficient initial point of contact will save time and money by both the public and the State by reducing improperly directed phone calls office visits.

This directory of State employees responsible for community development activities is one component of a larger capacity building tool kit developed by the Task Force and its members in the last year. Other components of the tool kit include:

- Directory of Rural Meeting Locations: A directory of state offices located in rural areas which have meeting space available to other State agencies. These locations can be used to hold small meetings, house program circuit riders or large technical assistance workshops.
- Centralized Information on Technical Assistance Workshops: A single-point of contact for obtaining information on technical assistance workshops sponsored by State agencies.
- Rural Stakeholder Directory: A directory of rural stakeholder groups which can be used by State agencies when developing mailing lists, establishing task forces, inviting participation on panels and other activities where rural areas are targeted or a true statewide geographic distribution is required.
- Searchable State Grants Database – GETGRANTS!: Much of the grant funding available to assist individuals and organizations goes unawarded each year because of a general lack of information regarding grant programs. In rural areas in particular, prospective grant recipients are sometimes far from funding sources, and their projects remain under-funded. In an effort to improve grant awareness in both rural and other areas, the Governor's Office for Innovation in Government is developing a fully searchable and comprehensive grants database. GetGrants! allows users to identify grant sources within California's agencies and departments through a single search, without being required to know the name of the department administering the grant. The GetGrants! database is already available in text format at the Innovation Web site at <http://www.iig.ca.gov> and is expected to be fully operational by Fall 2002. When finished, the site will offer a valuable resource to both individuals and organizations within the rural community.
